Story of Addenda®

Our story

The Addenda growers' association was set up in 2007. A number of producers decided to join forces and invest in relationships with breeders to achieve better results. As one of the very first growers' associations in the Netherlands, we offer a huge range of Campanula and Hebe. From plants in small pots, to pots for patios, terraces and hanging baskets. The growers' association now has 15 members in the Netherlands and Belgium and eight licensed growers in the Netherlands and elsewhere in Europe. Addenda is a supplier of cuttings from exclusive genetics: we have our own in-house cutting and rooting processes in Africa and the Netherlands. At Addenda we also make use of the knowledge and expertise of our growers specialising in product development, cuttings and rooting. Besides supplying cuttings, the association is also a marketing organisation that manages the supply chain to ensure a demand-driven supply of seasonal products.

If plants have the Addenda trademark, you are assured of absolute top quality. Each plant has its own brand and unique character, so you can specifically choose the one that suits you. In addition to outstanding quality, we guarantee you can benefit from an ever-expanding range. In our new product development work our focus is firmly on the consumer's needs. Every year around 1,000 new cultivars obtained by crossing are evaluated by our growers – only the very best pass the inspection. We achieve all this in combination with environmentally friendly cultivation methods. We use natural predators as far as possible to control any pests and diseases. Our working methods are designed to enable us to act with the best intentions for people, animals and the environment throughout the entire production process. With our plants you'll create a garden and patio full of flowers, and together we will be contributing to biodiversity.

Just Add

From breeding to attracting consumers

Our process

Breeding and selection

We develop unique products through exclusive partnerships with breeding companies.

At Addenda we invest constantly in product innovation and expansion.

Our selection process for new genetics is market-driven and takes account of sustainable criteria such as:

- Visual appeal
- Disease resistance
- Shelf life
- Floriferousness
- Further development and flowering in the garden
- Contribution to biodiversity

Cutting production and rooting

We work closely with our cutting producing partners in Africa and the Netherlands to achieve perfect starting material.

The cuttings are rooted by our partners in the Netherlands.

They develop roots and are prepared for shipping to our growers within around 6-8 weeks.

3.

Grown with love

Addenda plants are grown with love for people, animals and the environment.

A select group of 15 leading growers in the Netherlands and Belgium and eight licensees in the Netherlands, France, Germany, Italy and the UK produce plants to the highest quality standard.

With craftsmanship and passion is how our growers produce more than 8 million plants per year. Our assortment consists of two products and various product groups:

- Hebe (Donna, Classica, Petita, Granda, Vinoa, Mucha)
- Campanula (Adansa and Ambella)

Addenda members are FSI compliant and GAP and/or MPS certified.

Attracting and inspiring the consumer

At Addenda we respond to our customers' wants and needs with targeted online and offline support to boost appeal and sales. For this we provide

- Sales concepts
- Shelf displays
- Styling and photography
- Online and offline communication
- Online marketing and sales support with the Addenda Media Library
- Sales promotions
- Customer-specific support

We keep Addenda Campanula and Hebe top of mind with consumers, trade partners and retailers right across Europe.

Improving our sustainability is a continuous process at Addenda®

Sustainable varieties

Our exclusive collaboration with breeders is an example of how we work together to achieve sustainable, resilient top varieties.

We aim for optimal consumer values such as:

- Shelf life
- Floriferousness
- Disease resistance
- Genetic traits such as climate resilience and compactness

Reducing our environmental impact

We work constantly on minimising our environmental impact by monitoring and analysing the plant life cycle. These criteria are considered when new varieties are selected. Campanula and Hebe have a very small energy footprint as they are cultivated cold and outdoors.

We are constantly on the lookout for more sustainable potting compost blends and aim for optimal reuse and recycling of materials:

- 100% biodegradable labels
- 40% reduction in materials thanks to new Hebe and Campanula labels for 2023
- Pots made of >99% recycled plastic
- Tray collars made from FSC certified paper
- Transport trays reused multiple times wherever possible

Minimising chemicals throughout the supply chain

To control any diseases and pests, we use natural and biological controls as much as possible and only use plant protection products that have been approved by the CTGB (Dutch Board for the Authorisation of Plant Protection Products and Biocides). Products authorised by the CTGB are safe for humans, animals and the environment. Addenda stopped using bee-unfriendly chemicals such as neonicotinoids in 2017. We routinely monitor the use of chemicals throughout the supply chain by commissioning residue analyses from independent laboratories at our growers and cuttings suppliers. We use natural predators as far as possible to control any pests and diseases and aim to exclusively use biological crop protection products.

How we work:

- Throughout the entire production process we act with the best intentions for people, animals and the environment.
- We adhere to the ambitions of the industry organisation Tuinbranche Nederland, with supply chain agreements that go beyond the legal requirements and that are drawn up in collaboration with CLM (Dutch Centre for Agriculture and the Environment) and monitored by Stichting Natuur & Milieu (Nature & Environment Foundation).
- We constantly strive to reduce our use of chemicals.
- We supply healthy plants that will give consumers many years of pleasure and contribute to biodiversity.

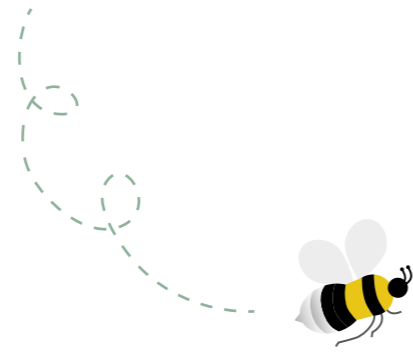

Contributing to biodiversity

Through its 'Be(e) Friendly' campaigns, Addenda aims to inform the consumer about the value and benefit of flowering plants in contributing to biodiversity.

- Campanula and Hebe attract butterflies, bees and other pollinators.
- Campanulas are winter hardy and flower for 4-6 weeks, three times a year, perennial; this way, bees are provided with food for months on end every year.
- Hebe has a long flowering period, right up until the first frosts, when the bees are still active!

Campanula

Campanula

The abundant display of flowers produced by Campanula Addenda is the star attraction in your garden. What makes this perennial special is that it flowers several times a year and for a considerable length of time: 4 to 6 weeks. Campanula flowers about three times a year. Campanula only 'sleeps' in winter, after which the flowers return in all their glory. As a result, you will have an eye-catcher in your garden or on your patio or balcony all year long.

With their classic and cheerful appearance, Campanulas from Addenda are perhaps the most rewarding plants you could imagine, with varieties and colours to suit various garden styles. Campanula is ideal for hanging baskets and also looks great in window boxes. A bare patch of soil in the garden? Why not plant a Campanula - they create superb ground cover.

Addenda® Campanula comes in two varieties: Ambella® and Adansa®.

Hebe

It's always summer with Hebe!

Extend the summer season in your garden or on your balcony with Hebe: these magical little shrubs have panicles in the most delightful shades, will bloom until at least the end of October and are a firm favourite with bees and butterflies. The Hebe from Addenda is an evergreen plant that will display dazzling blooms until late autumn. Also known as the shrubby veronica, Hebe is ideal for planting in beds, borders and on the edges of ponds. It also looks perfect in pots or baskets. Ideal for our climate: the plant is quite happy in low temperatures (-3°C), although it is advisable to give it some protection in severe frosts.

What makes Hebe even more attractive is that bees absolutely love it. That's because the countless florets on the spikes are packed full of nectar. Once you have a Hebe in your garden, it will soon be buzzing with pollinators. This is excellent news for nature because this allows other flowers, plants and crops to continue to grow. Like bees, butterflies also adore Hebe and they are bees' equals as pollinators. What's more: a garden filled with butterflies looks wonderfully summery – well into autumn.

Hebe Addenda comes in six varieties: Donna®, Mucha®, Petita®, Granda®, Vinoa® & Classica®.

Scan the QR code to see the available product range.

Donna®

Hebe Donna®, a well-branched shrub with 5 to 7 cm long flower spikes, consisting of numerous florets, brings colour to your patio. Hebe Donna® works wonderfully in a pot, but also comes into its own planted directly in the garden.

Mucha®

With its purple flower spikes projecting above the foliage, Hebe Mucha® produces a veritable feast of colour in your garden. The name says it all: muchas! This abundantly flowering, explosive Hebe creates a truly summery feel.

Petita®

With its compact but richly flowering nature, Hebe Petita® is perfect for smaller pot sizes of 10.5 and 12 cm. Its small, shiny leaves combined with a floral feast of blue, pink or white flower spikes make it ideal as a table decoration or in flower arrangements.

Granda®

Hebe Granda® is an authentic plant with large flower spikes measuring 10 cm or more. This impressive eye-catcher gives a long, rich display of blooms. It is ideal for the terrace, patio or garden room, but its true glory is revealed when planted as a solitary specimen.

Vinoa®

Hebe Vinoa® is unique with its shiny leaves in a wine-red colour. This well-branched and compact Hebe has a luxurious look and will add a Mediterranean touch to your garden or balcony with its deep-red leaves and purple flower spikes: la dolce vita!

Classica®

The distinctive features of Hebe Classica® are its variegated leaves and blue or pink flower spikes. The combination of the leaves and rich blooms will bring an extended period of style and elegance to your garden or patio.
